CICCHETTI

/Chi'kede/

Cicchetti are small snacks or side dishes, customarily served in popular cicchetti or oyster bars in Venice, Italy. Similar to Spanish tapas, guests can choose from a variety of options and make a meal out of cicchetti by ordering multiple plates.

Typical cicchetti include plates of olives or vegetables, mini sandwiches, small servings of seafood, meat, or vegetables served on top of a slice of bread or polenta, or petite servings of typical full-course plates.

The popularity of cicchetti not only involves the food itself but also how, when, and where the snacks are enjoyed. Plates are usually eaten with fingers and toothpicks, standing up or hanging out around the bar where they are displayed and served throughout the day. Cicchetti are usually accompanied by a small glass of local white wine.
